DIGITAL ARCHAEOLOGY NETWORK

The Roman (Arch) Monument at Richborough

Lecture by Fabian Gapp (DAI)

3th DECEMBER 2026
16:00 (s.t.)
Room 004

Freie Universität Berlin
Arnimallee 11, 14195 Berlin

The roman (arch) monument at Richborough was probably the biggest of its kind in the entire roman empire. Supposedly it was completely clad with white marble veneers, of which more than a 1000 pieces were found during the excavations of the 1920s and 30s. The goal of the project is to critically re-evaluate to reconstruction of the monument and compare it to the monumental architecture in the roman empire, starting with the documentation of all the marble fragments with the methods of the Digital Roofs project. Combined with 3D scans of diagnostic pieces the material will be studied.

MEETING LINK

https://fu-berlin.webex.com/fu-berlin/j.php?MTID=m77e63d402609276a29d96561c8a36861

CONTACT

digital.archaeology@berliner-antike-kolleg.org

BERLIN GRADUATE SCHOOL OF ANCIENT STUDIES

BERLINER ANTIKE-KOLLEG

Freie Universität Berlin

HUMBOLDT-UNIVERSITÄT ZU BERLIN